

Ventral streams: Cortical circuits extending from the primary visual cortex to part of the temporal lobe. These circuits take in information about the visual properties of an object, such as its shape and colour, which are analyzed in order to identify them.

