

Medial prefrontal cortex: Part of the prefrontal cortex that interfaces with the cognitive and emotional systems. It is believed that, within this structure, emotions and the meaning of things are experienced (e.g. becoming aware of emotions and the effects of a trauma).